FISH & CHIPS

The Nation's Favourite

The Wensleydale Heifer previously held the Guinness World record for the largest serving of fish and chips in 2011. The Heifer took the record back from a restaurant in Boston USA bringing the record home to Yorkshire.

Fish & Chips is our most popular dish on the menu selling over 200,000 portions over the past 19 years, that equates to over 188,560 kilos of prime Whitby haddock, 138,750 kilos of our famous fat chips and probably over 196 million peas!!!!

Here are some more fun facts about this historical dish!

Fish and chips were served in newspaper until the 1980s

During the Second World War Winston Churchill recognised the crucial role of fish and chips, referring to them as 'good companions'.

Fish and chips were two of the few foods not subject to rationing because the government feared the dish was so embedded in the nation's culture that any limit would damage morale

Fish and chips played a part in the D-Day Landings – British soldiers identified each other by crying out 'fish' and waiting for the response of 'chips'

The longest running fish and chip shop still in operation is based in Yeadon near Leeds. The shop trades under the name 'The Oldest Fish & Chip Shop in the World'. It is believed that fish and chips have been served from the premises continually since 1865

The word batter comes from the French word battre, which means to beat – in reference to whisking the flour and water together

The World Record holders for the fastest portion of chips served from scratch belongs to Henley's Fish & Chip Shop in Wivenhoe, Colchester, Essex. They took a raw potato, peeled it, chipped it, cooked to perfection and served up in an amazing 222 seconds

The Guinness World Record for wrapping chips is held by Steph Celik of Blue Whale Fish & Chip Shop in Maltby, South Yorkshire. Beating a previous record by two seconds in 2012, speedy Steph wrapped up five 350g portions of chips, with added salt and vinegar, in just 58 seconds
